L&G

But don't just take our word for it

"Our company moved to Goldsworth Place in Oct 2023 after looking at many buildings in the area. Goldsworth Place stood out for a number of reasons which made it the obvious choice for us. Primarily the location was brilliant – we are right across the road from the town centre, two shopping centres, hotels and lots of places to eat. We were moving from an area that had none of these things so it was a huge selling point for us and our staff.

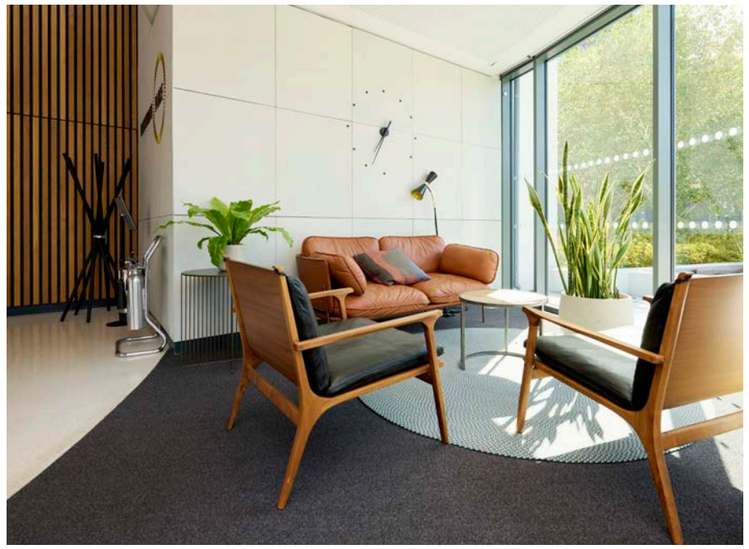

The parking provision was by far the best in the area which is always a main consideration when looking to move offices. The building itself has great facilities for all tenants – a real stand out for us is the front of house Reception area and staff which make a great impression on visitors and staff alike. There are regular events, Pop-Ups and food trucks arranged for the building which has been great. The building is light, airy and to a high standard. Communal areas in the building are well equipped, have been fitted out beautifully and are a really useful addition to our office space.

I have found Building Management have been great to deal with – quick to react to any communication and have gone above and beyond to accommodate us. Staff have enjoyed making use of the building Pet Policy too which we have never had before. L&G have also been very accommodating during the whole process.

All in all, a very positive experience since we have moved in – a great space to come to and somewhere our staff are really enjoying working in."

GREEN IS IN WOKING'S NATURE

Protecting Biodiversity

An important priority of the Council's development plan (Woking 2027, planning the future of the Borough) is the protection and development of biodiversity and its green belt, which covers approximately 60% of the Borough.

This plays a key role in providing recreational opportunity, securing the quality of the Borough's landscape setting, and in contributing to the special identity of the area.

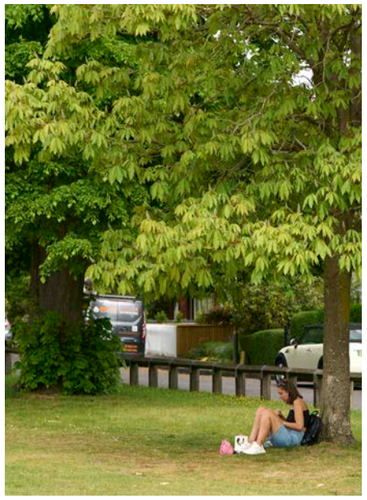

The outcome is an abundance of outdoor opportunities, whether it's Canalside calm, a connection to nature or something more physical there are many choices for sports, recreation and natural tranquillity across the borough.

Goldsworth Place is set within the heart of Woking town centre. For the 3rd successive year the town has appeared in the top 3 UK's best places to live and work*

Woking is more than a stop on the commuter map — it's a town in motion, transforming into one of the South East's most dynamic regional centres. With fast, direct access to London, exceptional digital and transport connectivity, and a local council driving serious investment, Woking is built for business.

Life and Style

Woking has evolved culturally, with a lifestyle offering that rivals much larger towns and cities. At its heart lies a vibrant centre filled with buzzing cafés, stylish bars, restaurants, and national retailers. The Peacocks Centre anchors the retail scene with well-known brands, while The New Victoria Theatre and a six-screen cinema deliver year-round entertainment. Just around the corner, The Lightbox gallery brings world-class art exhibitions to the community.

Major regeneration projects like Jubilee Square and Commercial Way are transforming the town. Victoria Square adds a new dimension with 14,500 sq m of retail space, over 400 new homes, and two stunning new plazas.

Surrounded by green space, Woking remains deeply connected to nature, offering an exceptional quality of, sporting choices, and over 355 hectares of woodland and heath at Horsell Common. The nine-mile Saturn Trail along the Basingstoke Canal is perfect for walking and running, offering an escape into nature just minutes from the town centre.

Success breeds success

The message is clear: Woking is investing in itself — and in the people and businesses that choose to call it home.

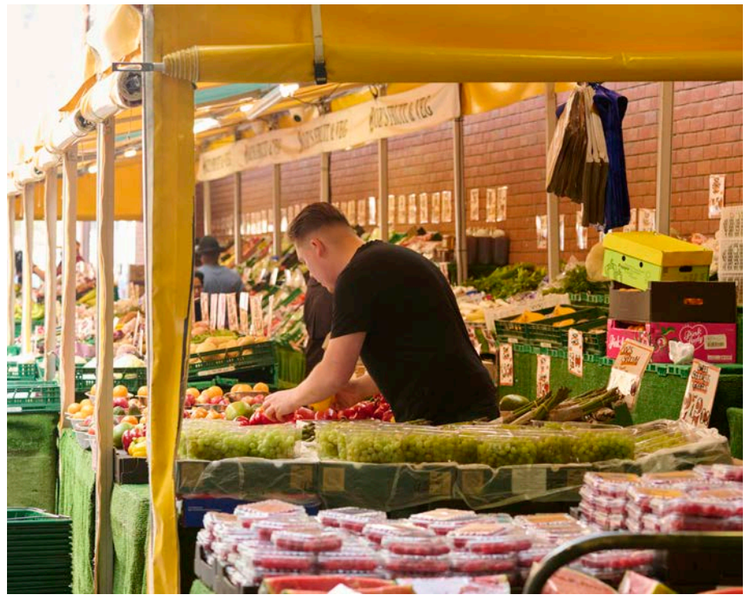

It's a key reason why so many leading organisations choose to be here. McLaren, WWF, Asahi, Colgate, Nomad Foods and the UK headquarters of The World Wildlife Fund and their 'Living Planet' Conservation Centre, all operate from Woking, drawn by its global connectivity, top-tier talent pool, and a business environment that consistently outperforms expectations.

Woking is not just growing — it's excelling as a genuine mix of commerce and community.

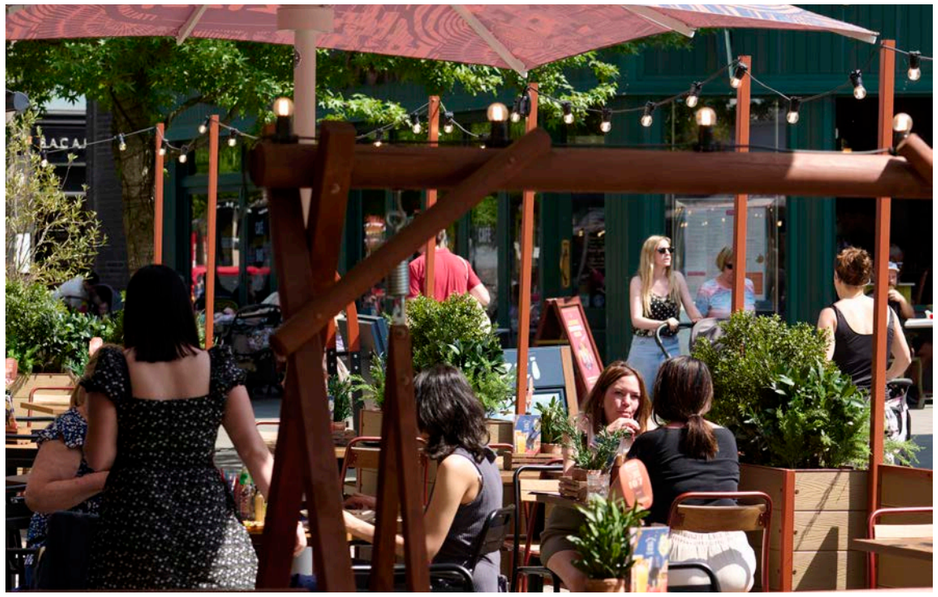

- Woking maintains and protects 60% green belt countryside
- Educational attainment is well above the UK average
- Highly accessible – M25 J11, M3 J3 & A3 a short distance,
- A320 through the town centre to Guildford and Staines-Upon-Thames
- Jobs in Managerial, Professional & Technical sectors, 7% above the national average
- Substantially more investment than other towns SW of the M25

Woking is a smart, strategic decision that will ultimately support business growth, talent retention and long-term success.
